Bad timing
May 09 by John Johnson

Jumping over fences just before dawn
Trying to hide where we'd gone Shadows in the alley met our need Praying that nobody had seen

Down in the cellar to scared to talk While sirens wailed in the dark Our souls woven there as we kneel
No one else could know how we feel

Chorus:
You're always fronting, fleeing and flying
When loves only due to bad timing
fronting, fleeing and flying bad timing
fronting, fleeing and flying bad timing fronting, fleeing and flying

Lost you, due to the war
Wasn't sure about anything anymore

Found you, down at the mall
Your eyes looked lost and confused Leaning against a wall

Chorus

Guitar break (verse twice)

We spent the years clinging to love putting out kids and making a home Trying to fill up all the voids Trying to hear through all of the noise

Then they came after all that time Still pursuing a distant crime
I just froze while you ran Will I ever see you again

Final Chorus

You're always fronting, fleeing and flying
When loves only due to bad timing
fronting, fleeing and flying bad timing
fronting, fleeing and flying bad timing
fronting, fleeing and flying bad timing (just drums)
fronting, fleeing and flying bad timing
fronting, fleeing and flying bad timing
fronting, fleeing and flying bad timing
