“Denali”
(John Woog Johnson)

I travel from city to city, I travel from morning to night
Over land and oceans, dawn to dusk
Still everything around me doesn't seem right

Chorus:
Climbing to the top of Denali,
swimming to the bottom of the Marianis trench
Crawling cross the desert where the sun is the hottest
But I still haven't gotten over you yet

Walking down an alley at midnight, Am I drunk or is this a dream\
The shadows I meet are all from the past
Am I outside reality or in between

Chorus:
Climbing to the top of Denali,
swimming to the bottom of the Marianis trench
Crawling cross the desert where the sun is the hottest
But I still haven't gotten over you yet

I awoke in a hotel in Paris,
The lights of the city twinkle below
All I could need, all I could want
But there's still somewhere I have to go

Chorus:
Climbing to the top of Denali,
swimming to the bottom of the Marianis trench
Crawling cross the desert where the sun is the hottest
But I still haven't gotten over you yet
